He shared his personal experiences, his college days, how he faces the hardships to get his graduation.

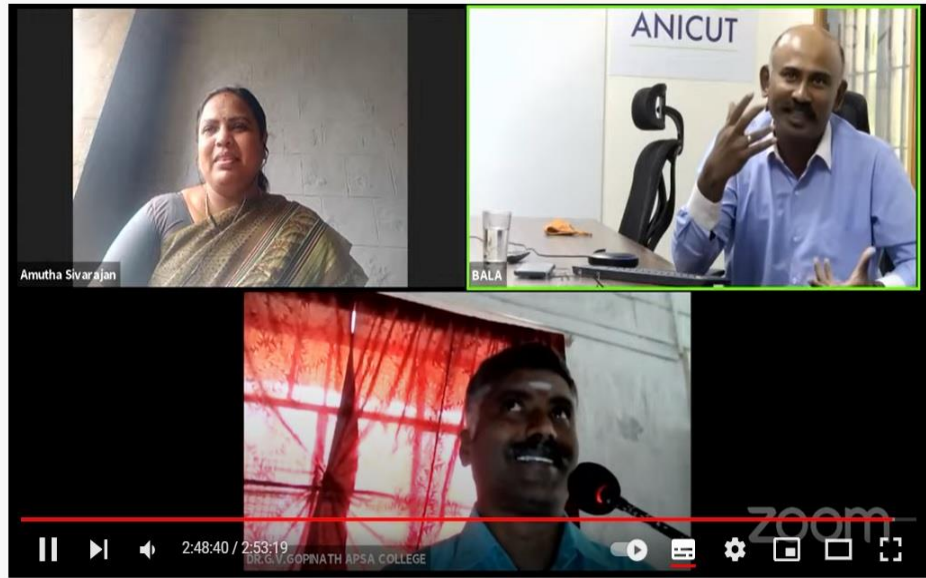

He explained that the Seed capital is the funding required to get a new business started. This initial funding, which usually comes from the business owner(s) and perhaps friends and family, supports preliminary activities such as market research, product research and development (R&D) and business plan development. His speech inspired the students. He explained each and everything of venture capital.

Finally he requested all students to focus on their venture capital to gain a proper future. There was no superior feeling while he was interacting with the students. So all students felt free to ask questions and cleared their doubts.

Mr. Jeeva Balakrishnan, Senior Vice President (HR), Chief Talent Officer, Reliance Retail Ltd, Mumbai presented a special address

He explained that the Human Resource Management (HRM) must also develop mechanisms that will help multicultural individuals work together. As background, language, custom or age differences become more prevalent, there are indications that employee conflict will increase.

He emphasised that HRM would be required to train management to be more flexible in its practices. Because tomorrow's workers will come in different colours, nationalities and so on, managers will be required to change their ways. This will necessitate managers being trained to recognize differences in workers and to appreciate and even celebrate these differences.

Finally he requested all students to emphasis on their HRM to gain a proper future. There was no superior feeling while he was interacting with the students. So all students felt free to ask questions and cleared their doubts.
